Patent, trade secrets, copyright, trademark. We've heard these terms, but what do they mean in practice? What is the role of intellectual property law in the cultural revitalization and economic development activities of American Indians, Alaska Natives, and Native Hawaiian organizations?

Join us for presentations and Q&A featuring indigenous experts and representatives from the US Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) and the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), geared especially to indigenous leaders, lawyers, and community members. The webinars will also introduce WIPO's Intergovernmental Process to address Intellectual Property and Traditional Knowledge (TK), Traditional Cultural Expressions (TCEs), and Genetic Resources (GRs), and Indigenous Peoples' own laws, customs, and traditions.
